The consumer bureau's report said responsible access to credit cards remains available, although consumers "For many patients, other modalities or medication such as a combination of acetaminophen and ibuprofen is a more effective and less abuse-prone pain reducer."