It's thought that this might be because western diets tend to be higher in animal fat (including dairy products) and lower in fresh fruit and vegetables.